

Punctuating Adjective Clauses

Identifying/Restrictive (no commas) or Non-Identifying/Non-restrictive (commas)?

Use commas with:

- Names (capital letter)
- Possessive Pronouns (my, you, his, her, its, their, our)
- If there is only one of something (the moon) or if referring to all of something (Cats are beautiful animals)

1. Mike, who lives next door to me, is a great neighbor.
2. My hometown, which is located in Peru, is a wonderful place.
3. The book that I read for class was very interesting. → no comma
4. New Mexico, which is a US state, is not the same as the country of Mexico.
5. The woman who processed my application was very friendly. → no comma
6. The capital of Oklahoma, which is called Oklahoma City, is located in the center of the state.
7. My dog, who is very friendly, is a Golden Retriever.
8. The soup that is in the refrigerator is for dinner. Don't eat it! → no comma
9. The teacher who teaches in room 336 is hard to understand. → no comma
10. Bread, which is made from ground grain, is a common food across the world.